

FLOOD HORROR GROWS WORSE

CONGRESS ASKED FOR $50,000,000 FOR RELIEF IN COLORADO

Rush Relief to Stricken Area; Waters Recede

Total Death Toll Still Unknown—Citizens of Desolate Area Plan Quick Recuperation; Tell Intimate Story of Disaster.

(By Associated Press)
Pueblo, Colo.—Flood stricken central Colorado Monday surveyed the havoc wrought by the most disastrous flood in the history of the west.
An accurate estimate of the loss of life and property damage is impossible at this time. With morgues crowded to overflowing, hospitals turning patients to improvised relief stations and thousands homeless or suffering from exposure, every effort was being directed today toward alleviation of the suffering. The work of checking up the destruction and plans for rehabilitation were left to the attention of outside forces, now enroute to the almost prostrate community.

Danger of repetition of the flood seemed to have passed, but restoration of the city to any semblance of normal conditions is a matter of weeks. Every dam in the Arkansas and Fountain rivers, from which danger might be expected, is gone and the levees about the city are so ruined that they will have to be repaired before even the business section can be cleared of water.

Three Times Renewed.
Thurs. Sunday came a renewal of the flood. At 4 a. m. water rose several feet, when the crest of the flood from the breaking of the Stratton Park dam near Colorado Springs reached Pueblo. In the afternoon, breaking of the Skagway reservoir and Beaver dam near Victor, caused another rise. Again Sunday night, following another heavy rain storm, the water rose.

In none of the floods of Sunday, however, did the water reach the level of Friday night.
An exact figure as to the number of bodies recovered was impossible. Morgues have been established at many places and not all of those could be reached. Dr. J. H. Miller of the Red Cross placed the number of bodies found at approximately 100, basing his estimate on reports made to him and on personal investigation of the devastated area.

500 in Hospitals.
The number of persons in temporary hospitals was placed at 500 by J. E. Brown, secretary to Governor Shoup. Typhoid, pneumonia, diphtheria and one or two cases of insanity were found.

The upper floor of the court-house has been converted into a hospital with 57 patients. A supply of coats, blankets and sweaters arrived Sunday from the Red Cross in Colorado Springs.
Hundreds applied to the Red Cross Sunday and Saturday for food, clothing and medical relief. A canteen supplied the food. A carload of beef was commandeered from the railroads and sent to the city. The Red Cross expected the meat to aid materially the food situation. One of the greatest problems here is drinking water. The only water available is from the little spring near the Congress hotel.

Restoration of the city to even an approach to normal conditions is a matter of weeks. All the levees were washed out and restoration of the river to its natural bed presents an engineering problem of magnitude.

Push Rescue Work.
Rescue work was carried on with renewed vigor Monday. The basement of every building in filled with mud and mud. Windows of basements were crushed in by the flood and military officials say bodies may be found here weeks later, when it has been possible to pump out basements and shovel out the mud.

Fourteen doctors and 25 nurses arrived here last night from Colorado Springs. Fifteen from Denver and 18 from Colorado Springs.

Business men attribute much of the flood to the blocking of the flood waters by a railroad right of way in one section, built entirely of slag. With the exception of a small hole under the tracks, the slag withstood the onrush of the flood and the waters backed up into the city, so they were disappointed. They hoped to see it and could not.

WOMAN FLYER DIES WHEN PLANE FALLS 1,000 FEET TO EARTH

MISS LAURA BROMWELL
Minneapolis, L. I.—Miss Laura Bromwell, holder of the loop the loop record for women, and one of the best known women pilots in the world, was killed at Mitchell field Sunday afternoon when her plane fell 1,000 feet.

Miss Bromwell had just completed one loop and was about to make a second when the plane crashed to the ground.
Military observers declared the girl's airplane motor stopped as she was making the upward turn of the loop. Suddenly the machine fell backward into a tail spin and dropped to a road just outside the field. The girl's lifeless body was found in the tangled wreckage.

Rescue workers who witnessed the accident declared the girl's apparent inability to manipulate the levers probably was due to her being swung from the seat so that she could not reach them. She was flying high enough, they said, to have brought the plane safely to earth, even if the motor had stopped, had she been able to use the levers.

Miss Bromwell was 22 years old. She established her loop the loop record May 15, 1921, when she executed 139 loops in an hour and 20 minutes.

PUTS ROCK COUNTY IN NEW DISTRICT WITH J. M. NELSON

NEW APPORTIONMENT BILL MAKES MANY RADICAL CHANGES.
COOPER IS OUT
Present Member Placed in New District Outside-Walworth and Rock.

(By Staff Correspondent)
Madison.—Revolutionary changes in the congressional districts of the state, whereby the third district with Walworth, Jefferson, Dane, and Green counties, is proposed in a bill prepared by Senator Claire Bird, of the committee on apportionment. The bill probably will be presented to the committee for discussion Monday night.

This bill, with that of Senator Arnold, which makes only a few changes in the present geography of the districts, are the two measures most likely to be used as a basis for apportionment and on which the final action will be taken. It is declared the bills are based on geography and population, have nothing to do with politics and have taken into consideration the political fortunes of no man.

Cooper Gets Industrial District.
By the bill the old first district, now represented by Congressman A. C. Cooper, loses Rock and Walworth and is added to it a part of Milwaukee county. It is said an old decision of the courts forbids the addition of a fractional part of a county—or in other words, that a district must be wholly within a county or take the whole county. It remains to be seen how effective that contention may be.

Racine, Kenosha, Waukegan and a part of Milwaukee county would be added to the first district. The population is placed at 241,221.

Largest of Them All.
The second district is to be made up of counties now represented by Edward Voight of Sheboygan, except

11 ESCAPE HURTS WHEN CARS CRASH

Two Touring Cars Collide on Milton Road—Both Are Damaged.
Bright headlights and crowded traffic conditions resulted in a serious accident about 10 o'clock Saturday night when two touring cars crashed on the Milton road a short distance from Janesville. Although the cars were buckled and damaged none of the 11 occupants suffered other than minor contusions and sprains.

The light car owned by A. M. Guernsey, Johnston, a member, was traveling at a high speed. The heavier machine driven by Harold Featherston, Milton, and owned by his father, James Featherston, was coming toward Janesville.

Auto Traffic Stops.
There were five in each car. There was a long line of automobiles traveling both directions on the road at the time of the accident. The road is unusually wide with side roads on the highway beyond the city limit.

Is the Prince of Japan a "Dummy" and is Honor Being Paid to a Double?

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Washington.—The sober old Church Times of London prints its belief that the globe trotting prince of Japan who has just gone to England from France with his formidable retinue and his 1,500 trunks, is not the royal Hirohito, but a dummy dressed up to look like him.
If the story is true, it reverses Gilbert, turns the monster of topography into a topography. For Gilbert's wandering minstrel was the royal heir in disguise, whereas this is alleged to be a case of the real prince staying at home and an impersonator being sent out to play the wanderer in the courts of the nations.

Whether the story is true or false it is exceedingly embarrassing to the Japanese government, which speedily issued a positive denial, for a statement like that is much more easily made than disproved or properly discredited. And the fact that Japan is a distant land of different customs, with a royalty hedged about as none other is, and even considered a divinity, will be sufficient reason for masses of unthinking persons to believe in the impersonation without evidence.

If the prince were at home and a dummy being sent in his place, it would not be the first time that has happened. The Car used to play this trick frequently on his people and sent out a double to meet the masses when journeys were taken in territory that had within its borders the dangerous nihilist. There are stories of Queen Bees parading about as a boy, or rather that the real Hirohito did and a boy was dressed as a girl and reigned as queen for many years.

It is known that the Japanese hold the Mikado as the representative of God on earth and the person of the Crown Prince as almost as sacred. In taking a journey he has defied every legend and every precedent of the empire. So it was hardly to start and easy to believe the rumor that the prince was not the actual prince but a dummy and double.

I'm guilty of taking the milk. If they would send me to jail, well, and good, I'll be fed there."
Municipal Judge Tully released Mowdy, saying: "I want to thank you for your government, of the United States, for the service which you rendered. It may be governments are forgetful, but this court will not go on record as sentencing you. You are free and may God bless you and show you more prosperous times."

Lincoln a Spiritualist, Say Trance Speakers in Spirit World Messages
"Vibrations from the spirit world" brought some rather startling allegations from mediums, seance speakers and "instruments of another world" during the mass meetings of the First Bible Spiritualist church held Saturday and Sunday in the East Side I. O. O. F. hall.
Many believers attended the meetings, but not a few who went to satisfy curiosity.
During each meeting there was a trance session in which messages were delivered from the platform. Henry Wustrow, graduated from the Morris Pratt spiritualist school in Whitewater, delivered messages during the meetings. Oscar A. Edgerly, Chicago, former Presbyterian pastor, went in the philosophy of the belief and its technical sides. He was a speaker of ability, notwithstanding the claim that during a trance address, he is not responsible for words spoken, rather the statements coming from the spirit world to be uttered by him.

Lincoln a Spiritualist.
Another allegation made was that Abraham Lincoln was a confirmed spiritualist before and during his administration as president.
"Spiritualism properly understood is the most accurate school in business," declared Edgerly during an address. The belief was declared to be founded on science, religion and philosophy combined in "naturalism."
Quotations were made from the Bible, but the "cross is the most hideous ensign of man's inhumanity to man." Parts of the Bible, it was said, are the narrow vision of those who lived in the Biblical times.

BACK TO NORMAL PROBLEM IS BIG

President Faces Great Economic Questions and Solution Is Slow.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Copyright 1921, by Janesville Gazette.

Washington.—President Harding is encountering the full force of the tidal wave which rises out of a disastrous economic situation and mistakably demands that the government cure all business ills and restore the profits of bygone days.

The president's bold demands today that judging by the appeals for government aid, many people imagined it possible for the executive and his administration by a wave of the hand to bring back normal conditions. The president looks upon the economic situation as the inevitable result of reconstruction and readjustment following the war. The cabinet at its Friday meeting discussed what the government could do, but unfortunately the government cannot do much more than guide certain currents that may have been set in motion by the situation. After all, it is the feeling of the president that the big industries will themselves find the way out of their troubles. America is suffering from the shock of the European war just as she did from the Civil war—in a natural and orderly way.

It is the agricultural situation, however, which causes concern for while the big industries can in a sense help themselves, the farmer needs to be financially helped. The government has an expert trade and at the same time must be protected in his home market. All these different desires are the basis for the so-called agricultural situation. The composition of members of both parties, mostly from the west and south, who are able to put through congress practically any measure of relief for the farmer, may want. And President Harding is unquestionably sympathetic with the agricultural group.

Railways the Key. Meanwhile, the president himself recognizes that the chief trouble of the present moment in the economic situation is the fact that the profits of yesterday out of which it might be possible for the government to make money are gone. Large portions of those profits have been paid into the treasury of the United States as income taxes and have been expended by the government. Were it possible for the business people of America to have paid taxes over a period of years rather than over a single year, the government would have been better able to finance themselves in the trying era of reconstruction when goods bought at steep prices must be sold below cost to clean shelves and empty the warehouses for new supplies.

What Steps to Take. But this is impossible. The government faces a condition and not a hypothetical case. And Mr. Harding realizes that the full strength of the electorate is being exerted to make the administration move in this or that direction so as to hasten a return to normalcy. It is a fact that the Harding administration has given more time and thought to domestic problems and particularly business and industry than any other administration in the history of the United States. It is a fact that the administration admit that the tide of circumstances over which no one in the government has control is almost irresistible.

Reducing Freight Rates. During the week President Harding broke a precedent in order to speed up one form of relief for American business. He suggested that freight rates to the interstate commerce commission and found upon inquiry there that already the commission was working on a program of voluntary reduction by the carriers of burdensome rates. Incidentally Mr. Harding seems to think that the days of horizontal increases or decreases in freight rates are about over and that the inequities of that system ought not to be repeated in any revision of freight rates.

What Farmers Ask. The farmers have been clamoring for an adjustment of freight rates. The carriers have been reluctant but the power of the agricultural elements of the nation in the Harding administration loomed up as too great to resist and the carriers are trying to work out a program that will be least harmful to them.

Of course if there were a definite tax program available, the air would be cleared but congress is having trouble enough with the tariff, let alone a revenue bill, and the prospects are not very bright as they were for an early cleaning up of legislation affecting business. The chances are that next fall congress will still be here haggling about tariff or tax measures. The movement in the convalescent period—even the wheels of congress. The administration is proceeding steadily but it would breathe much easier if the people didn't expect so much of the government.

THE DEATH ROLL

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor Gazette:

Interest in the recent letters in the "Voice of the People" in regard to the proposed dance hall in the first ward, has caused me to tell the fathers and mothers of this city, and the city officials, a few of the things seen along the Beloit road. These things have been observed by me or by members of my family during broad daylight.

We have seen boys and girls of from 15 to 20, both smoking cigarettes. Nearly every day we see boys hugging the girls, while the girls drive; or sometimes it is the girl who hugs the boy. We have seen boys and girls walking down the road with arms around each other in the daytime. Have also seen girls holding their dresses above their knees so as to show all below the knees, and holding the door of the car open so all along the road might also see. They were sitting in the front seat with the driver, a young man.

These things clearly indicate the lack of modesty and the laxness of morals of the young people of today. I have observed dance halls in other cities and other states, and I have never seen one where the desirable patrons could be or were excluded.

The modern dance surely leads to loose morals and weakens a girl's power to resist evil influences. In describing modern dances, he does not exaggerate.

If the young people are so lost to modesty as to allow the sex actions along the Beloit road indicate, surely their midnight actions in the shade of darkness, after a warm, exciting evening of dancing will be even more so. It will be easier to keep "The Pines" out of the first ward than it will be to regulate or close it after it is in operation.

Mothers! Fathers! For the safety of your young people, do not allow "The Pines" or you will surely regret it. A MOTHER.

IN WISCONSIN

Madison.—To guard against further outbreak of class warfare between freshmen and sophomores at the state university, the trustees have decided to hold officers of the two classes and members of the sophomore class in a committee to investigate the situation and to report to the board of trustees.

The action was provoked by the food-raided warfare which broke out between the two classes and was pushed into Lake Mendota.

Sheboygan.—A local banker has received black hand letters demanding $500 and threatening his life unless the money was deposited at a certain point. Some excitement was created when police officers at the point discovered a hand proceeding through the fence in search of the package supposed to contain $5,000 and fired two shots while the man refused to halt at the command of Lieut. Charles Ries. By an ingenious arrangement of gates the officers found themselves locked in and unable to take up pursuit.

SKIRTS GETTING SHORTER IN ZION MAYOR WORRIED

Zion, Ill.—The city fathers of the city of Zion evidently overlooked the fact that dresses would have a tendency to shorten at both ends. They covered the tops with an ordinance and neglected the bottoms. Mayor Clifford, mayor of Zion, has had his attention called to this palpable neglect on the part of the city powers. He was thunderstruck when he saw how much the ordinance was to act in cases where women had paraded in short skirts.

The present ordinance imposes a fine of from $200 or from five months to six months in the city hall for appearing in public in "peekaboo" or mosquito-net stockings, in sleeves that do not come down to the middle of the forearm or in blouses that expose or partially expose the neck and shoulders a greater distance than a third part from the neck to the tip of the shoulders. The ordinance is now being considered by the city fathers and is expected to be passed in a few days.

TOBACCO INDUSTRY IN CUBA FACES CRISIS

Havana.—Cuban tobacco planters say that the suspension by Great Britain of its extra 36 percent tax on tobacco imports will give little help in the present crisis faced by the Cuban tobacco industry. In a recent meeting of planters it was stated that the British dealers had stocked up heavily and would require little tobacco for some time. The planters also stated that their efforts to induce the tobacco workers' federations to accept reduced wages scales so that Cuban tobacco could be put on the market at reduced prices had resulted in a slight reduction of wages that it was considered useless.

MRS. STILLMAN AND H. F. MCCORMICK GO TO SEE GUARDIAN

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

New York.—The Stillman divorce case was given a new angle when it was learned Sunday that H. F. McCormick, Chicago, accompanied Mrs. Anne U. Stillman to Poughkeepsie for consultation with John E. Mack, guardian ad litem of the baby, Guy, whose legitimacy is the basis of the suit for divorce brought against the former stage star, "Flit" Potter, by her husband, James A. Stillman, millionaire and recently resigned bank president.

Fred Beauvais, French-Canadian guide, was named as the father of Guy.

Marold McCormick is the son-in-law of John D. Rockefeller. His son, Harold P. McCormick, Jr., is reported engaged to Miss Anne Stillman, daughter of the divorce case principals. Mr. McCormick's daughter, Miss Stillman's most intimate friend.

Nine women besides Mrs. Florence Lawlor Leeds, will be named by Mrs. Stillman when her attorney files the divorce suit in Poughkeepsie this week. It is reported Stillman will not be questioned about Mrs. Leeds, previously named as the mother of the baby, Guy, whose legitimacy is the basis of the suit for divorce brought against the former stage star, "Flit" Potter, by her husband, James A. Stillman, millionaire and recently resigned bank president.

GREEN CAP, HAZING BANNED AT VARSITY

Leaders in Bloody Battle May Be Expelled; Eight Seriously Injured.

Madison—All forms of hazing were abolished by the student senate of the University of Wisconsin Sunday, following serious injury of eight freshmen and leopards Saturday night in a class battle. The historic green cap was voted out, along with the annual class rush, on night and "hike parties."

Leaders of both the freshman and sophomore classes will go on trial before the student self-governing body this week to face charges of inducing freshmen to join the leopards.

Conviction will mean their expulsion from school. Demands of Professor E. A. Birge and of Dean Scott E. Goodright that conviction be taken to curb the activities of the two lower classes, resulted in the steps taken by the student senate.

The trouble of Saturday night was the worst in years. At that time, the annual freshman cap night, when green caps are burned, the sophomores attacked the lower classes, causing a night which brought into play hells, bombs and other fireworks.

More than 1,000 were engaged in the battle, which ended in a general lake party. Eight students were in the hospital over Sunday, seriously burned and cut up.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
 Hanover, N. H.—A study of the health of the members of the freshman class, to be used as the basis of regulating their diet and in order to modify the height of Dartmouth College next fall.

 all creeds of all nations in the world, and Mrs. Anna Zurek, investigator, that belief founded on the power of the human to communicate with the "world beyond."

One man received a message from his mother, who is still alive. Others were convinced of the utterances.

WHEN THE PEASANTS REVOLTED AGAINST SOVIET TYRANNY
 On May 23 the readers of the Gazette began the extraordinary story of the life of Mary Pickford told by herself. It is known in newspaper circles as one of the most important features offered to the press this year. In this the Gazette leads.

A great Chicago paper began the publication of the story on Saturday. Readers of the Gazette are a week ahead of that paper. This has happened in a number of big stories. The "Amazing Story of a Medium," "The Confession of a Medical Student," and a number of others have been given to Gazette readers far ahead of the papers of the larger cities.

There is just mentioned as an earnest effort of the Gazette to be in the forefront with the big things as they go at all times. There are a thousand newspaper men writing stories about the Dempsey-Carpentier battle to come off on July 2. The Gazette will have the best there is in this line without making the reader wait through columns of his own writing. Arrangements have been made with the National Newspaper Syndicate for the best feature of the big fight. It will begin ahead of time so as to be of the greatest interest to the reader.

Next Saturday there will be a story of the inside of Russia. The Peasant Outbreak, a warfare against the Bolsheviks by the downtrodden peasants who rose to combat will be told. The story of Antonoff and his revolt comes from sources that cannot be denied true. This will be another chapter on Japan and its eternal question.

Capt. Jonah's Fortune

By JAMES A. COOPER
Copyright by Geo. Sully Co.

"Hi gorry!" said the doctor suddenly. "Here comes a gurgling noise, and I don't know what's got into the fellow lately. Likely he needs a good course of Jonah."

Mr. Truitt approached with his basket, headed toward the provisions.
"Mornin', Miss Sue! Mornin' gentlemen!" was his greeting, and he would have been saying more along the lines of Doctor Ambrose's remarks, but he was interrupted by a loud knock.

"You going to do what I advised you, 'Liphaleet? If any fellow's liver ever needed a course of sprouts, yours does."
"I ain't sure, doc," said the ex-steward, "but I'd near 'bout have the undertaker come and see 'bout my liver, 'cause it's a little bit of a bother."

"Hi gorry!" chorused Doctor Ambrose, who could take a joke as well as make one. "You've got me there, 'Liphaleet. And that's just the point, 'Liphaleet. You've got me there. I believe your liver's at the bottom of that."

"Now Sam!" urged gentle Miss Sue, with a hand on the doctor's arm. "You're Truitt, I hope we'll see you at the Christmas committee meeting next time, 'Liphaleet."
His reply was scarcely audible to the group as he slunk on again.

"The doc's sister is a sparkling-looking craft," said Cap'n Jonas admiringly, as the car snorted away.
"She's a lovely lady," agreed Jessamine Heimford. "And a good deal of a catch, they say, captain. They tell me she's got forty thousand dollars in her own right."

"Forty thousand—sand? What- ever?"
"Of course that's a mere bagatelle to a man of your fortune," added Heimford with twinkling eyes.

The gold-banded china appeared on the party table at supper that evening in honor of Mr. Heimford's coming. Pearl put on a fresh pink apron and even Mrs. Pettibone, who was usually so dignified, brought out a ruffled apron and a lace-trimmed collar.

After supper Heimford started out on some adventure of his own and Cap'n Jonah excused himself from the family with the intention of going to his room. As he started for the front hall Sarah Pettibone cleared her throat.

"Aight! You'll go to your room a sight easier, if you'll let me let Uncle John in. He had to let Mr. Heimford have that best room, as I told you 'liphaleet. I've put your chest and things in the room over-head."

"Whatever?" ejaculated Cap'n Jonah under his breath. He took a retrospective glance of snuff and went up to bed without further ado. He possibly had heard forward with an expression of doubt upon his avuncular face.

"I dunno but you are makin' a mistake, Sarah," he whispered. "I should be rich."
"Then let him pay me decent heed," snapped Sarah.

"But suppose he has got that old note, Sarah?" suggested Orrin.
"It'll be time enough to worry, I'd decide, when he produces it. If he's rollin' in wealth, why don't he show some of it?"

Cap'n Jonah found the back bedroom very stuffy and unpleasant. It was a bare, unadorned place, with the cracked looking glass in such a position that a man could not possibly see to shave himself, either by daylight or lamplight. There was no closet for his chest nor even a chair to sit on.

He bethought him of the retired seaman he vaguely knew in the neighborhood, and made up his mind that most of them had it better than he had. 'Liphaleet Truitt, for instance.

He and the ex-steward had become rather good friends. Indeed, almost everybody found it easy to be friends with Mr. Truitt.

The spy ex-steward, well-known in everybody about Carleton and along the Shell Road, had been welcomed heartily when he had come ten years or more before and bought the little house near the main house. He and his wife had been very man's friend for the years of his sojourn.

But the captain had to confess that 'Liphaleet Truitt was a more than ordinary ordinary looking man. He was a little taller than the average, and his hair was a faded brown. He had a certain air of authority about him, and his eyes were a deep blue.

HOLWAY WANTS USE OF MONEY PAID TO STATE BY U. S.

Madison.—Wisconsin has a claim of $883,159 against the federal government for maintenance of troops during the Mexican trouble and the world war, of which $24,769 has been acknowledged and will be paid into the state treasury within a short time. Orlando Holway, adjutant general, told the joint finance committee Thursday. Request was made by the adjutant general that this money go into his budget to supplement the biennial appropriation. Through this means the state can develop its army equipment and stimulate interest in the national guard, building up a citizen army at the most opportune time, according to General Holway. It was pointed out by the committee that the adjutant general's department did not have a sufficient appropriation to carry out the program which it had mapped. At the present time, $600,000 is allowed annually for national guard, while the state is said to be paying $9,000,000 to maintain the federal standing army.

Fishermen of North Want State Hatchery

[By Associated Press.]

Madison.—Fishermen of northern Wisconsin are asking the legislature for location of a hatchery in one of the real trout counties in the state, in a bill heard before the finance committee. A request for $2,000 to start the project is made. Assemblyman Mark Catlin, chairman of the fish and game committee of the assembly, said that at present fish are hatched in the southern or central part of the state and as a result cannot be successfully transported and planted in the northern streams.

Superior—The attempted burglarizing of the safe of the G. E. St. John company, wholesale feed dealers, is believed to be the work of exports. They gained entrance through a tunnel from a box car. The work would indicate that the robbers were frightened away shortly after having gained entrance to the building. The razor prints are being traced.

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN BRACE

XXIV.—MISSOURI
Whether Missouri was actually visited by De Soto at the time of his discovery, or whether the Mississippi is not definitely known, the first authentic exploration of this territory was by the French, Joliet and Father Marquette in 1673. French settlers gradually located in Missouri, in 1763 St. Louis being settled. This was the year Spain ceded to France the Louisiana Territory of which Missouri was a part.

Colonization greatly increased after the ordinance of 1787, which excluded slavery from the Northwest territory, as that naturally deflected many to the territory west of the Mississippi who otherwise would have settled in the north. The first settlement was in 1803 to hold the stage in Missouri history. After the Louisiana Purchase in 1803 added this vast area to the United States, emigration increased to such an extent that in 1820 Missouri was a state government and applied for admission to the Union.

Slavery antagonism immediately arose in congress against the admission of Missouri as a free state and one state would therefore balance another. A final settlement was made by the famous Missouri compromise, which accepted Missouri as a slave state but prohibited slavery in the rest of the territory north of a line extending from the southern boundary of Missouri to the Rocky Mountains. Indeed, it was this agitation which temporarily smothered at that time, burst forth again in 1854, and is in the forefront of the important states in national politics, as it has 18 electoral votes for president. Its area is 69,420 square miles.

So smart and bright that he took the place of a child in the water. When the water was deep, he would go for a kelp across the grassy meadows on her adorable little pony, Frisky, with sheep bounding ahead, chasing jackrabbits.

Billy and Nannie had been on the farm some time now and had become acquainted with every person and animal on the place. Some they looked upon as friends, others as enemies, some they detested, others they were perfectly indifferent to, neither liking nor disliking them. Some they admired, but feared. Among them were the two beautiful driving horses, Prince and Major, that roamed through the pasture skirting the woods.

Billy and Nannie never attempted to cross the pasture or to take a nibble of grass here, but that one or the other of these big, handsome horses did not appear to respect their boundaries. They were simply panicking whenever the saw them coming. Still, when the horses were shut in one yard and the goats in another the horses seemed friendly enough and would often talk to the goats through the fence.

The Market Basket of Southern Wisconsin—Covered by The Gazette

The Gazette thoroughly covers this rich market in a manner that cannot even be approached by any other advertising medium, therefore, has become the first choice of wide-awake, progressive advertisers who insist upon getting their full money's worth for each dollar expended in advertising.

WASTED ADVERTISING WHO PAYS?

THE RETAILER AND WHOLESALE PAYS

Many manufacturers advertise in mediums of national circulation, covering vast territory where they have no distribution. They spend thousands of dollars creating a demand that cannot be supplied and then complain because the dealer sells a similar article to those who respond to the advertising.

And in territories where jobbers and retailers have stocked the goods, the magazine circulation is necessarily limited, reaching only a minority of your customers.

But the waste circulation must be paid for—and it is bought at the expense of the very retailers and wholesalers who are giving that advertiser their co-operation!

When salesmen try to sell you merchandise on the strength of an advertising campaign, insist that the advertising be confined to channels of distribution, that the advertising appear in newspapers reaching the greatest number of prospects in your territory.

That is the manufacturer's duty and it is your right.

INSIST UPON NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

At any time that you are figuring with any manufacturer or jobber on local advertising, the Gazette will be glad to furnish you with complete surveys and data regarding the richness of the territory covered daily.

When the representative is in your store talking about advertising, phone the Gazette and we will send a man immediately to give you all necessary information.
